One-Sided

Q. I have an old newspaper clipping from a San Diego paper which gives an account of a basketball game which my team won — believe it or not — by a score of 50 to 1. This was in the 1929-30 season, but I don't remember the date. Is there a newspaper in San Diego which might provide one? L. L., Long Beach.

A. A member of the San Diego Union and Tribune sports staff checked their sports files for a record of your lopsided game, but came up without the ball. You can have access to the files of the Tribune and Union — which date back before 1900 — if you are in San Diego. You may have to go through the paper day by day for that period to locate the story, too lengthy a process for the newspaper's librarians.

Q. Last October I bought a new car in Long Beach and paid the 5 per cent sales tax on it. Then on Feb. 13 I received a notice from the City of Los Angeles saying that because I live in Wilmington I had to pay an additional 1 per cent use tax. I paid it to avoid any trouble. Can ACTION LINE tell me what it's all about? I. R., Wilmington.

A. The 1 per cent Los Angeles City sales or use tax is being imposed on city residents from Oct. 1, 1968 to March 31, 1969 in order to help pull the city out of a fiscal crisis. Although small purchases outside the city cannot be traced, the city has subscribed to a special service which informs it of car purchases made outside Los Angeles by residents of the city. The buyer then is notified that he must pay the 1 per cent additional tax within 30 days. If he doesn't comply, he is charged a 10 per cent penalty. "We feel this is justified because, although the car was bought in Long Beach, it is being used in Los Angeles," said David Feuerstein, supervisor of the special investigation unit of the Los Angeles City tax division.

Q. Can ACTION LINE tell me how to become a mortician and embalmer? I am a retired Navy man, and think I would enjoy that kind of work. C. P., Lakewood.

Action Line

A. First, you must get a job as an apprentice in a funeral home, according to H. R. Christensen, public relations director for Dilday Mortuary. You must serve a two-year apprenticeship, and during that time complete a one-year course which can be taken in this area only at the California College of Mortuary Science, 1920 Mareno St., Los Angeles. Upon completion of the course, you must pass an exam administered by the State Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers. When you pass this exam, you are eligible to become a licensed mortician.

Q. I bought my husband a small, home weather station for Christmas. We understand the barometer should be adjusted but we don't know how. T. G., Lakewood.

A. Your aneroid barometer measures atmospheric pressure. It is basically the same instrument as an aircraft altimeter used to measure altitude, so it is sensitive to variations in height above sea-level. However, the Weather Bureau's barometer readings always are given for sea-level and Dave Williams, a forecaster, says the bureau recommends home barometers simply be set to the current Weather Bureau sea-level reading and ignore their elevation. While this will not give a true reading at a home, for instance, located 500 feet above sea level, the relative fluctuations of the barometer needle will be the same — and it is the rise and fall of the needle that is important in weather forecasting. A set screw on the back of the instrument is used to adjust it. The current official barometer reading may be obtained from the Weather Bureau office, 766-2201, or from radio and television weather reports which usually note the current reading.

That's the Ticket

Q. On Dec. 1, I mailed $15 to the Lyceum Theater in New York for two tickets for a Jan. 1 performance. The performance I was interested in was sold out. I asked the mail order manager to refund my money and he said that it was in the mail as of Dec. 7. I have never received my refund despite contacting the company on four different occasions. Can you please help me out? J. K., Long Beach.

Action Line

A. Mike McHale, mail order manager for the Lyceum Theater, says that he will send out a tracer on the cash refund he sent you last December. If this tracer turns up nothing, he promised he will issue a check for the amount that is due.

Senators Ask Hold on ABM

Committee Puts Strong Pressure on White House

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee urged the Administration Friday to delay deployment of a ballistic missile defense system while it seeks a strategic arms control agreement with the Soviet Union.

The committee included the recommendation in its report on the nuclear non-proliferation treaty as bipartisan Senate pressure built up to get President Nixon to postpone further deployment of the $5.5 billion Sentinel antiballistic missile (ABM) system.

With a presidential decision expected early next week, a bipartisan group of senators, led by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, took to the Senate floor to make a final appeal to Nixon.

MANSFIELD WARNED that a decision to proceed with the Sentinel deployment would represent "a movement of the nation's leadership in the wrong direction and at the wrong time."

Sentinel will not add one iota to the security of life in the United States," Mansfield said.

"It may well detract from it," he said, in intensifying the "serious inner difficulties" confronting the nation.

WHILE THE bipartisan group held forth on the Senate floor, three Republican senators — John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, Jacob Javits of New York and Charles H. Percy of Illinois — quietly slipped away to intercede personally at the White House for a delay in the Sentinel project. The three met for an hour at the White House with Henry A. Kissinger, the President's national security adviser.

If only because of the strenuous case being made by the Sentinel opponents, it was becoming apparent that on the ABM heading for President Nixon first major confrontation with Congress.

Friend or Kin Made Sirhan Family Threat

Testimony Hampers Defense

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

A defense witness — who appeared to hurt more than help accused assassin Sirhan Bishara Sirhan — testified Friday the young Jordanian shouted, "Kennedy, you s.o.b.," a split second before he fired the shot which ended the New York senator's life.

Richard Lubic, a communications worker who was in the pantry area of the Ambassador Hotel the night Robert F. Kennedy was shot, however, wasn't the only defense witness to appear to side with the prosecution. Many of the other 13 defense witnesses who paraded to the stand Friday seemed to inadvertently hamper defense strategy.

Chief defense attorney Grant Cooper, however, appeared unruffled by the testimony of the witness.

"This will all tie in when we get the doctors on the stand," he said in a corridor news conference.

The doctors — two psychologists and three psychiatrists — will be on the stand beginning Monday. Their testimony is expected to last a week.

Hans Peter Bidstrup, an electrician employed at the Ambassador election night, told the court he saw Sirhan in the hotel's Venetian Room, near the headquarters for senatorial candidate Max Rafferty, with a "glass in his hand."

UNDER EXAMINATION by Chief Defense Counsel Cooper, Bidstrup said Sirhan appeared intoxicated, although he didn't stagger and his eyes were not bloodshot.

However, under cross examination by Deputy District Attorney John Howard, the bespectacled Dane admitted he was a teetotaler and based the fact the defendant was drunk on the fact "he had a glass in his hand and it was half empty."

"If he didn't have the glass, I wouldn't have thought he was intoxicated," Bidstrup admitted.

Also under cross examination, he said Sirhan had

LINKUP TOPS EXPECTATIONS

Spacemen Triumph: Moon Landing Next?

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Elated officials

guiding America to the moon said Friday's successful rendezvous and linkup by two Apollo 9 spaceships "exceeded even our utmost expectations." But they rated the chances of a moon landing on the next flight as slim.

"We have accomplished all our primary objectives and many secondary objectives" set for Apollo 9, Lt. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, Apollo program manager, told a news conference.

However, under cross examination by Deputy District Attorney John Howard, the bespectacled Dane admitted he was a teetotaler and based the fact the defendant was drunk on the fact "he had a glass in his hand and it was half empty."

"If he didn't have the glass, I wouldn't have thought he was intoxicated," Bidstrup admitted.

Also under cross examination, he said Sirhan had make a landing on the next flight."

Aiming for a landing on the next mission without first testing the lunar module in moon orbit might "make the risk of a landing intolerably high," the program director said.

If Apollo 10 were sidelined, however, it could move up the trip to the lunar surface from mid-June, as now scheduled, to mid-June.

In any case, Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and David R. Scott and civilian astronaut Russell L. Schweickart Friday removed all doubt that they can safely shuttle space-men from an Apollo command ship in lunar orbit to and from the moon's surface.

DURING THE risky six-hour rendezvous, McDivitt and Schweickart successfully triggered LEM engines designed to ferry men to the moon and blast them back into lunar orbit for the return trip to earth. They also fired small maneuvering jets needed to make minor course changes en route.

LEM guidance systems worked properly, and the spidery craft's life-support systems proved they can keep astronauts alive.

The dramatic space chase began when Air Force Col. McDivitt and Schweickart disengaged the lunar module from Apollo 9 after a brief hangup when the docking mechanism didn't unlatch immediately.

Expertly maneuvering their tiny craft, they flew to a position 113 miles behind the command ship, now manned alone by Scott.

Swapping radio and radar signals with Scott, the LEM pilots began the pursuit, skillfully guiding their craft through the same maneuvers that two astronauts will have to make when they launch themselves off the moon.

The two ships lost sight of one another for about 25 minutes near the maximum range.

But, as the LEM closed in and sped into daylight, Scott reported sighting his pursuers as a tiny speck in the sky.

"We see him, too," McDivitt reported.

When the LEM was 23 miles behind and 11 miles below its target, McDivitt

Girl Killed by Touching Power Line

A 16-year-old Buena Park girl was electrocuted Friday when an outdoor TV antenna she was attempting to move came into contact with a high-voltage power line.

Diane Miller, of 8487 San Carlos Way, was pronounced dead at Beach Community Hospital in Buena Park after the accident at 6:15 p.m.

The girl's body was found in the backyard by her mother, Mrs. Pat Miller, who called police.

No Arrest; Complaint Not Filed

A telephone call threatening to wipe out the family of accused assassin Sirhan Bishara Sirhan and his chief defense counsel came from a "close friend or relative," Pasadena police said Friday.

News of the threat was revealed when police re-established their guard over the Sirhan's Pasadena home after the call was received by Mrs. Grant Cooper, wife of Sirhan's chief defense counsel.

Mrs. Mary Sirhan, 55-year-old mother of the Kennedy assassin, and his 21-year-old brother, Munir, along with Cooper are the intended victims.

THE CALLER, who phoned the Cooper's Beverly Hills home to make his threat while the family and Cooper himself were in court, is believed to know the exact daily routine of the Sirhans and is believed to have access to the Pasadena home.

Although police know the identity of the would-be killer they have not arrested the man, officials said, because no complaint has been signed by Cooper or the family.

Cooper, in court Friday, refused to talk about the threat other than to say he has had "many such calls" in the past.

"I don't want to make a big thing of this by signing a complaint," the noted-criminal attorney said. He admitted that he did not have a special bodyguard, such as the Pasadena police reinstated over the Sirhans.

The Sirhan's special police protection was withdrawn Dec. 12, 1968, after authorities felt it was no longer necessary. However, a "hot line" between the home and police headquarters has been in effect since the arrest of the 24-year-old Jordanian for Kennedy's murder.

FAMILY MEMBERS would say little of the threat, except to confirm the special guard. Superior Court attaches reportedly advised the Sirhans before court ended Wednesday to remain at home that night.

Reason for the threat was not known.

Death-for-Incurable Bill Wins Nod

LONDON — A new law that would allow doctors to end the lives of some incurable patients got a first nod of approval from Britain's House of Lords Friday. Introduced in the upper house of Parliament, it was passed without debate. Under the law doctors could end the lives of incurably sick patients who specifically requested it.

Mrs. Iva Ikuko Toguri D'Aquino, whose sultry voice was beamed at American troops in the Pacific to induce them not to fight, still owes the government part of a $10,000 fine levied against her in 1949 when she was convicted of treason.

Federal Judge William J. Lynch Friday dismissed the motions to collect the amount owed the government from two accounts belonging to Mrs. D'Aquino's family.

On Jan. 9, the government collected $4,745 from the 52-year-old woman and had hoped to collect the remainder of the fine from two accounts worth about $6,600.

Judge Lynch dismissed the case when he found out the accounts are in the names of Mrs. D'Aquino's father and a nephew.

Mrs. D'Aquino served 6½ years of a 10-year prison term in a West Virginia women's reformatory.

The government filed suit in 1966 to collect the fine when it was learned she was living in Chicago.

Mrs. D'Aquino said she earns $400 a month as a clerk in her father's firm, the J. Toguri Mercantile Co.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Michael Cohen said that investigators have found no other assets from which to obtain payment from Mrs. D'Aquino, but said the investigation will continue.

4 Indicted in Valley Slaying

Associated Press

The gangland-style shootout last May that cost the life of a former Mickey Cohen henchman took a new turn Friday with disclosure that the Los Angeles county grand jury has indicted four men.

Two were accused of accompanying the victim, George Bart Piscitelle, in a "raid" on a Van Nuys apartment.

At the time, the shoot-out was reported as three underworld figures against three innocent young men.

But grand jury indictments claim it stemmed from an earlier robbery of $11,000 to be used to purchase narcotics for sale.

INDICTED were Ira S. Stark, 27, North Hollywood; Eugene D. (Gino) Massaro, 30, Hollywood; Martin Hochman, 23, North Hollywood, and Donald S. Brown, who operates a marriage counseling service in Sherman Oaks.

Piscitelle once was charged with Cohen and three others in the 1959 slaying of Jack (The Enforcer) Whalen. He was killed after he, Massaro and Stark, assertedly posing as police officers gained entrance to an apartment in Van Nuys.

Speaker Differs With Reagan on Tax Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly speaker Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, said Friday the Flourney Commission Tax reform proposal — rejected by Gov. Ronald Reagan — "represents a major contribution to the cause of tax equity."

He said it would mitigate the plight of local governments and "the long-suffering property owner."

But Monagan added he doubts the plan would get through the Legislature without major changes.

REAGAN complained that the plan, which he requested last year, still amounts to a multimillion dollar tax increase. He asked his own fiscal experts to come up with another plan that doesn't raise taxes.

Monagan, in his weekly newsletter said "It should be noted, however, that the commission was not attempting to cut taxes. The goal is tax equity, and any attempt to alleviate the property tax burden must be accompanied by a program to accumulate new revenues for this purpose."

Monagan said he always has had serious reservations about withholding. "But I would be willing to consider it as part of a major tax reform package."

THE commission headed by Controller Huston I. Flourney, a Republican like Reagan and Monagan, proposed withholding of state income taxes, a statewide property tax to equalize support of schools and a five percent sales tax on public utility bills and other services.

Firing of County Coroner Forecast

By BILL MAYER
From Our L.A. Bureau

Inside sources are predicting Dr. Thomas T. Noguchi, the county's 42-year-old coroner, will be fired, and his only hope lies in the courts.

The matter will come up before the Board of Supervisors Tuesday.

The supervisors suspended Noguchi last Tuesday, after Chief Administrative Officer L. S. Hollinger urged immediate action along that line. Otherwise, Hollinger said, "the efficiency of the coroner's office will be seriously and permanently impaired."

All the supervisors agreed the charges were serious. So did Mrs. Thomas Noguchi, in a letter to the board — but she suggested they were contrived.

Hollinger said the coroner "threatened his subordinates and others in county service with grievous bodily injury."

Mrs. Noguchi's letter stated the "attack on him is nothing but pure character assassination."

"If I went around snooping in the CAO's department," she wrote, "I could probably pick up enough information from the discontented people in his department and by distorting and exaggerating, put together more material than he ever got on my husband, which would show him up as unfit for his position."

Mrs. Noguchi also said a court case appeared to be the only way out.

"We were given to understand," she wrote, "that my husband had no chance to win in these hearings and if we went that far, to get any justice we would have to go to court."

"We were warned this would be quite expensive, and may drag on for a year or two or longer. In the meantime we would be publicly faced with all the charges which, true or not, could hurt us."

The supervisors said nothing about the possibility of a court trial, but members denied most of the other allegations made by Mrs. Noguchi. Some went to particular pains to deny her husband was being victimized because of his Japanese birth.

"I supported Dr. Noguchi," Supervisor Kenneth Hahn pointed out. "I consider him my friend."

Let me say, as one of the friends of Dr. Noguchi who supported him this has nothing to do with any racial, religious or political situation, or the ability of Dr. Noguchi personally as an expert pathologist and a very fine doctor."

But Hahn also said this: "The statement made in the letter by Mr. Hollinger is very serious. The information that some of us know is no less than shocking."

Supervisor Frank Bonelli said the following:

"I was one of the staunch supporters of Dr. Noguchi when he was originally hired . . . In supporting the motion that is before us today, I do so with the full understanding and knowledge that all of the accusations are going to have to be documented, without any shadow of doubt as to their authenticity and correctness."

"And I reserve the right to make any final judgment on the employment of Dr. Noguchi until such time as I am satisfied one way or the other that he should be removed or should be allowed to stay."

Bonelli is board chairman.

Supervisor Burton Chace, who is directly responsible for the coroner's office, agreed with Bonelli's sentiments.

"I think that's very appropriate," Chace said. "I think it's plain that our action here this morning is on suspension, and we're all withholding our judgment until the charges will be presented to us at a later meeting for approval."

Supervisor Warren Dorn, who opposed Noguchi's appointment 15 months ago, and Supervisor E. E. Debs, who supported it, were both in Washington on country business.

The other three voted for the 30-day suspension.

Under the rules, the supervisors cannot fire Noguchi. All they can do is here the charges — secretly, unless he asks for an open session — and make a recommendation to the Civil Service Commission.

Inside sources, however, are convinced, along with Mrs. Noguchi, the decision will be for discharge.

Fake Doctor Faces 17 Felony Charges

Robert Erwin Brown, 33-year-old imposter who posed as a "heart specialist" in Fullerton, was indicted in Santa Ana Friday on 17 felony counts.

He was indicted by the Orange County Grand Jury on charges of practicing medicine without a license for five weeks at the Fullerton Internal Medicine Clinic.

Four of his 103 "patients" died, but authorities said they would not seek murder complaints against Brown.

Dep. Dist. Atty. James Enright said the state would have to prove Brown's intent to kill or harm the patients to support a murder indictment, which would be difficult if not impossible.

AFTER THE grand jury returned the indictment, Brown appeared briefly to answer before a superior court judge. But Judge Robert Gardner granted a continuance until March 21 to give his counsel from the public defender's office time to study the indictment.

Brown practiced under the name of "Dr. Glenn Foster," who is on the faculty at the University of Alabama medical school where Brown had unofficially studied medical journals and talked with doctors outside classrooms.

The real Dr. Foster was the key witness against Brown in the grand jury hearings.

TESTIMONY HURTS DEFENSE

asked him if he had seen Kennedy.

"I said I had, and then he asked me how long Kennedy had stayed at the Ambassador. There were a lot of questions about Mr. Kennedy's security — if there was any security, or something like that," Bidstrup testified. "I said that a man in his position should have security."

THE NEXT day, he said, his friend told him the person they were talking to had been arrested for shooting Kennedy. He said they immediately went to the FBI "because I ain't gonna get mixed up in any plots . . . like someone saw him talking to Mexican or Puerto Rican or anything like that."

Gonzalo Cetina, a waiter at the Ambassador, said he saw Sirhan near the Venetian Room about 10 p.m.

"He had papers under one arm and a drink in the other. He asked me to hold his drink while he took a chair — to sit down on — down from a stack."

He said he again saw Sirhan about midnight in the pantry.

Los Angeles Police Officer Robert E. Austin, also called as a defense witness, admitted he told an FBI agent, shortly after Kennedy's death, that he "couldn't understand Sirhan" when he was in the interrogation room after his arrest.

"I spoke to him as I stood outside the Rafferty headquarters," Rabago said, "and told him I was worried because Sen. McCarthy was ahead in the elections. He said 'Don't worry, if Sen. Kennedy doesn't win — that son of a b—— is a millionaire.'

"He said 'Even if he wins, he's not going to do anything for you or me or the poor people.'"

Asked if, as Sirhan testified, the young Jordanian offered to buy him a drink, Rabago answered a very definite "no."

"I'M POSITIVE he didn't offer to buy me a drink . . . in fact, he said he bought a drink for $1.30 and because the Rafferty people didn't like the way he was dressed, he gave the waitress a $20 bill and told her to keep the change."

"It's the money you have," Rabago quoted Sirhan as saying, "not the way you're dressed."

Sirhan, the young mechanic said, spoke good English — "I thought he had a good education. He was educated and arrogant."

"And," added the Mexican-American, further breaking down the defense contention Sirhan was intoxicated, "he wasn't drunk — and I wouldn't have thought he was drinking if he hadn't had the glass in his hand."

Rabago's companion on election night, Humphrey Cordero, backed up his friend's statements, adding: "He certainly didn't appear stupid — and didn't look drunk or on dope or drugs or anything else. I couldn't see anything wrong with him."

ON THE SUBJECT of Negroes, Weidner said, Sirhan felt they got their freedom "by violence — they could not get it by peaceful means."

"I discovered he had a dislike for Jewish people . . . a profound dislike. He said in America, Jewish people are top direct events. They said they had taken his home, and they had no right to be there."

"I told him I was tortured during the war by Nazis, and my sister was killed, yet I didn't hate the German people."

"I admire you," the Dutch immigrant quoted Sirhan as saying, "and I would like to be like you — but I cannot."

"In February of 1968," Weidner told the court, he had some trouble with Sirhan, in which Sirhan quit his job because he said Weidner called him a liar.

WEIDNER SAID he went to the Sirhan home and apologized for anything he might have said, with the impression if he did this, the young Jordanian would return to work. He didn't, the employer said, and later sued him to collect two weeks severance pay he felt was due. Sirhan lost the suit.

Also on the stand was Weidner's wife, Naomi, who verified her husband's story of Sirhan, and no more freedom in any other country in the world."

and Mrs. Grace Brynn, a Rosecrucian official, who told of seeing Sirhan at one of the group's meetings.

Earlier a string of friends detailed an accident suffered by the young Jordanian and his action before and after.

Millard Sheets, a designer and racehorse owner, said he was at the Corona ranch on Sept. 25, 1966, when Sirhan fell from a horse and was knocked unconscious.

"IT WAS FOGGY, but I finally found Sirhan lying against a post underneath a rail. He appeared very seriously hurt, or even dead. His face was messed up with blood and mud," Sheets said. "But he moaned a few minutes. He dug at his face and said a few quiet prayers. He told me later he thought he had gone blind."

Sheets said he admired Sirhan for his "courage — because I thought he was afraid of horses." Earlier, three other witnesses testified that Sirhan's attitude after the fall "changed."

Robert Prestwold, also a racehorse owner; John Strathmann, a language instructor at a military academy, and his wife, Patricia, also took the stand Friday.

HE STRATHMANN, good friends of Sirhan while he attended Pasadena City College, said after his fall he appeared "depressed and lonely."

Defense attorneys are trying to show that because of the fall, Sirhan's mentality was impaired.

When they finally docked, the feelings exploded. "Wow, I haven't heard a sound like that in a long time," shouted McDivitt when he heard the docking signal. "I have capture."

"Okay, Houston, we're docked," Scott called out. Schweickart called in, "Hey, when I take a break, I'm going to bed for three days."

"We concur," said mission control. "Three days off."

"Is that Saturday, Sunday and Christmas?" McDivitt asked. And with that remark, they reverted to business again.

AFTER THAT, at about the 100-hour mark of the 217-hour flight, they cut loose from what was left of the lander and fired its 3,500 pound thrust takeoff engine for more than six minutes to send it off into an egg-shaped 4,323 mile-by-141-mile high orbit.

A few hours later, the space trio retired after getting a promise from ground controllers that they would get a longer sleep than planned as a reward for their triumphant day.

Hayakawa Departure Suggested

Muchmore Hits
Nearly Everyone on College Woes

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

Although "many of my colleagues will disappear," California poltaker Don M. Muchmore in a Long Beach speech Friday:

—Urged S. I. Hayakawa to immediately resign as acting president of San Francisco State College;

—Blamed current student unrest on almost everyone involved in higher education — including, "more importantly, you and me."

—Emphatically denied the existence of "a so-called 'generation gap' separating students from their parents."

In a speech, "Criss-Crossing Higher Education" Muchmore set out to say "a lot of nasty things and a lot of nice things" about colleges.

A sometime college professor, administrator, state finance officer and vice chancellor of the state college system, Muchmore now heads the respected State Poll and Opinion Research of California organizations.

He said Dr. Hayakawa should quit a post he assumed at the peak of a November campus crisis because the famed semantist - turned - administrator "is trying more to reform higher education than to run his college."

"I do not criticize his first two or three months in the job," Muchmore continued. "I criticize what he's doing now" — traveling about the country making speeches.

Among those who cannot evade blame for student militancy, he said, are faculty, administrators, presidents, trustees or regents, communications media and politicians, "not to mention the students themselves."

HIS HEAVIEST BLAST was leveled at college faculties who "fail to project to students an image which creates respect for the society in which they live and of the rights of fellow students."

Administrators, "most of whom came up from faculty ranks," also took some of the brunt. He was especially critical of a system in which "peer judges peer" professionally without review by a superior, he told the Downtown Lions Club, at the Lafayette Hotel.

Finally, "there are not enough of us — you and I — to stand up and take about one-third of the blame."

Muchmore related this reluctance to a blind belief in a "gap" supposedly separating parents from children. "It doesn't exist," he declared, "and anyone who says it does is a liar."

“DISSENTING STUDENTS are reflecting what their parents (secretly) would like to have done" in their own college days, he said:

He substantiated this with a recent survey in 26 states that indicated a 1 per cent deviation between the thinking of liberal parents and their children, 3 per cent separating conservative elders from their youngsters.

A "feeling of uneasiness most of us have in the pits of our stomachs" is a root cause of dissension, he said.

"The whole world rests squarely in the midst of this 'mood of uneasiness' blissfully unwilling to accept consequences of political activity but more than willing to complain . . . There is a failure (by) parents to reestablish a strong family life on which all great democracies have flourished."

"We have lost purpose, we have lost direction," Muchmore concluded. "Are we to fall from the pinnacle because we have lost our purpose?"

WILD STUDENT WALKOUT

Rampaging students pour from doors of Brooklyn's Eastern District High School in New York City's Williamsburg section Friday, trampling scattered school records. School was closed by Principal Frank Stewart after about 200 shouting youngsters rioted, running through halls, smashing glass partitions, overturning tables and chairs and ransacking school records. The outbreak apparently stemmed from an incident in which a pupil challenged a dean of students to a fist-fight.

15 Jailed in Junior High Sit-in

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Squads of police broke up a sit-down demonstration by 200 junior high school students Friday, triggering President Nixon's troupe represents the same script of the last 25 or 30 years.

Welch told newsmen at a press conference at Los Angeles' Century Plaza Hotel before the society's annual banquet that he and the editors of his bulletins are reserving judgment on Nixon. But the ex-candy-maker's judgment came through loud and clear during the interview.

An undetermined number of students were injured by flying glass when rocks smashed through classroom windows. Officials canceled remaining classes.

THREE OF THOSE arrested were adults, including a member of the Black Students Union at a nearby junior college. The teen-agers had marched to the administration building after he was arrested for refusing to leave the campus.

A school spokesman said "bedlam" broke out when police carrying clubs moved into disperse the demonstrators.

Several trash cans were hurled through windows, desks were overturned and rocks were flung through windows.

Three young girls were rushed to hospitals with injuries of an undetermined nature. They told attendants they had been clubbed by police.

The spokesman said the BSU member, Joseph Jones, had come to the predominantly Negro junior high school to solicit support for BSU activities at Southwest Junior College, where the BSU and administrators are engaged in negotiations over demands for establishment of a black studies department and more black faculty.

In Westchester, a bomb exploded on the campus of Loyola University early Friday. There were no injuries.

IN SAN FRANCISCO, a Negro student at San Francisco State College was charged Friday with firing into an occupied building, possession of loaded guns and having guns on campus after a shooting at the strike-troubled school Thursday night.

Police said at least six pistol shots were fired, several into Merced Hall, a student residence building. Others broke a cafeteria window and a street lamp, officers said.

James L. Kennedy, 21, was arrested in Merced Hall, where he lives. Police confiscated a .38 caliber revolver and a .25-caliber automatic and ammunition.

"We have lost purpose, we have lost direction," Muchmore concluded. "Are we to fall from the pinnacle because we have lost our purpose?"

Birch Society Founder Hits Nixon 'Play-Actor' Troupe

over the apparent Sino-Soviet rift, Welch said, means nothing, is mere play-acting and a "Method of distracting us from the real danger, the gradual takeover by internal subversion."

Welch refused to name leaders which he or his society would approve of for the presidency, insisting the organization is not political. However, he expressed personal admiration for former agriculture secretary Ezra Taft Benson, Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., and former Ohio senator Frank Lausche.

Welch said the Birch Society, formed in 1958, is responsible for the defeat of President Johnson's appointment of Abe Fortas

"We're not happy with what has happened; it's difficult to find any signs of real change from the last four or five administrations," he said.

ASKED HIS own prescription, Welch assigned top priority to winning the war in Vietnam, "not playing around, going through the motions, or feeding our enemies so they can kill more of our boys."

Campus violence is no surprise, he said. But its solution requires only a crackdown with ordinances already on the books, and recognition of its instigation and inspiration by Communists.

It is not coincidental, he said, the same kind of disturbances break out in Ankara, Bonn, Berkeley and Tokyo.

Welch expressed "concern" but not criticism of the Nixon administration, some of the concern dealing with Nixon appointees. He called them the same kind which had been showing up for the past 25 or 30 years. He does not know, he said whether they were appointed "to pay off political debts."

Of Nixon's HEW secretary, former Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch, Welch said, "he's certainly not one of my favorite statesmen."

Politeness may have explained Nixon's recent praise of French President DeGaulle, Welch suggested in view of the fact DeGaulle "is a Communist who helped sell out his own nation time after time."

But, he added, some people in the Birch Society think DeGaulle is wonderful.

RIVERDALE (UPI) — Former Gov. Edmund G. Brown indicated Friday he may make an attempt to regain the governorship he lost to Ronald Reagan in 1966.

"I would not hesitate to take on Gov. Reagan," he told newsmen.

"I think the things he is doing are catastrophic," Brown said.

GOLDA MEIR Wins Israeli Premiership

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Mrs. Golda Meir, a 71-year-old grandmother, doing "pretty good for a girl from Milwaukee," fended off a challenge from Defense Minister Moshe Dayan Friday and won assurance that she will become Israel's next premier.

The Jewish state's governing Labor Party nominated the graying, stern-faced former foreign minister by a vote of 287-0 to succeed the late Levi Eshkol.

Mrs. Meir was assured of moving into the post because the Labor Party holds a majority in Israel's 120-member Knesset (Parliament). Formal installation of Mrs. Meir was expected within two weeks.

Police said at least six pistol shots were fired, several into Merced Hall, a student residence building. Others broke a cafeteria window and a street lamp, officers said.

James L. Kennedy, 21, was arrested in Merced Hall, where he lives. Police confiscated a .38 caliber revolver and a .25-caliber automatic and ammunition.

Nixon Comes to Grips With Domestic Budget

By ROBERT B. SEMPLE JR.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon came to grips Friday for the first time with the momentous question of how and where he is going to spend federal funds for domestic programs over the next few years.

Late Friday afternoon, before the President's departure for a weekend of rest and work in Key Biscayne, Fla., Budget Director Robert Mayo handed Nixon the preliminary results of an agency-by-agency review of President Johnson's budget requests for fiscal year 1970.

THE REVIEW consists of recommendations by each Cabinet officer of where the Johnson budget might be cut and where it might be increased.

No details of the recommendations were immediately available, but the fact that they have finally arrived at the White House means that Nixon must now begin to make the critical budget choices that, in effect, will establish his basic domestic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon bestowed the Medal of Honor on three Vietnam veterans at the White House Friday. He called the decoration ceremony his "highest honor" since taking office. He said the three army veterans — S. Sgt. Joe R. Hooper of Saugus, Calif., Sgt. 1C Fred William Zabitosky of Trenton, N.J., and Spec. 5 Clarence Eugene Sasser of Rosaron, Tex., "have demonstrated by their deeds we can be proud of the youth of America."

whether the recommendations of Nixon's Cabinet officers, when added together, would exceed that figure.

The original objective of the budget review was to achieve a net reduction, but Mayo has admitted several times that the aggregate Nixon figure cannot be reduced substantially below the last administration's.

Earlier Friday, Nixon conferred with his key economic advisers on other matters, including the rapid increase in lumber prices.

AFTER the meetings, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told newsmen that Nixon, at the suggestion of his Cabinet committee

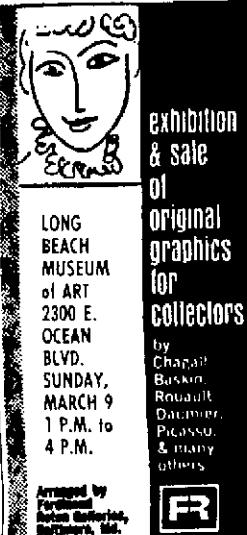

2 Jets Collide, 1 Pilot Killed

LEMOORE NAS (UPI)

— A pilot was killed Friday in a mid-air collision of two Navy jets southwest of here, marking the second air tragedy in as many days at this Naval air station.

A Navy spokesman said the name of the victim was being withheld pending the notification of next of kin. The other pilot, Lt. William J. Catlett, flying an A7 Corsair II, ejected safely.

Thursday, five men were killed and another critically injured when a four-engine P3 Orion crashed on landing at Lemoore's east runway.

Nixon Wants Full Report on Pueblo

CORONADO (UPI)—The head of the Navy's inquiry into the capture of the USS Pueblo flew to Hawaii Friday to report to his chief after a secret session on how servicemen can be trained to resist captors.

After the brief session Friday morning, Vice Adm. Harold Bowen adjourned the court of inquiry until Monday when Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher, the Pueblo skipper, WASHINGTON (UPI)—A bill to provide extra compensation for the USS Pueblo crew and other servicemen detained by hostile forces in Southeast Asia has been approved by a House commerce subcommittee. It would authorize maximum payment of $2.50 for each day of captivity.

will again testify. Bowen then flew to Hawaii to confer with Adm. John J. Hyland, Commander-in-Chief of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, who ordered the inquiry.

Hyland will be the first to see the court's recommendations and will pass them on to the secretary of the navy. President Nixon has said he also plans to review the inquiry's findings.

BUCHER's return to the witness table Monday, at the request of his civilian attorney, will open him to cross examination by the five-admiral board on all points raised thus far in the hearing. The line of questioning might give some clue as to what recommendation the admirals may make on Bucher. They could recommend him for anything from a decoration to a court-martial.

Presumably the admirals will question him closely on confusion in manning battle stations and the failure to destroy classified documents during the seizure of the spy ship by the North Koreans Jan. 23, 1968.

Capt. John Stane, an authority on the Navy's SERE program, which teaches survival, evasion, resistance and escape from Communist lands, described the program in Friday's secret session, and a Navy spokesman said afterwards most of his testimony was "definitely classified."

The Navy said, however, it would release unclassified portions of the testimony later.

TWO PUEBLO sailors, who underwent the rugged SERE course of interrogation and mistreatment by officers trained in Communist police methods, testified earlier that the training helped them stand up during their 11 months of North Korean captivity.

Communications technician 2C. Angelo S. Strano, 23, Hartford, Conn., also appeared at Friday's closed door session but portions of his testimony were released by the Navy. His testimony paralleled that of his shipmates.

He said he was told by the North Koreans that his brother had been killed in Vietnam, but he did not ask where they got the information, which was true.

STRANO, a member of the ship's "spook" unit, said he could not account for the slow start of emergency destruction of classified material. He said his superiors were on the ship's phones trying to get permission from the bridge to start destruction before the call to man battle stations came.

The Navy also released Friday testimony given in secret Thursday by communications technician 1C. Donald R. McClaren, Chico, who told the court he suffered a loss of feeling in his left arm after a guard dealt him several karate chops to the back of the neck.

He said he was sickened by seeing his fellow shipmates being used as a punching bag, not knowing if we were going to get out.

VICE ADM. BOWEN Flies to Hawaii

Hole in Breathing Hose of Dead Aquanaut Told

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—

Navy investigators were told Friday there was a hole in the breathing hose connecting Sealab III Aquanaut Berry Cannon to the personnel transport capsule when he died on the ocean floor 610 feet below the surface.

Lt. Alan Goldberg, attorney for Chief Torpedoman Paul A. Wells, a fellow aquanaut and a party to the board of investigation, disclosed the hole in the umbilical hose that provided Cannon with a supplemental supply of breathing gas. Cannon died minutes after he left the transport capsule, in which he descended to the ocean bottom, to swim to the Sealab habitat.

THE AQUANAUTS carried a very limited amount of breathing gas in backpacks but it was sufficient for only a few minutes and not enough for free swimming operations. The umbilical hoses supplied supplemental breathing gas from the transport capsule.

Under questioning by Goldberg, Dr. F. J. Luibel, a pathologist for the county coroner's office who ruled that Cannon died of carbon dioxide poisoning, admitted that the veteran aquanaut might actually have been asphyxiated.

However, Luibel said that it was the carbon dioxide poisoning that would have led to the asphyxiation of Cannon Feb. 17.

Goldberg also said a witness would be called later to show that an electrical disturbance occurred in the water off San Clemente island at the time Cannon died.

GOLDBERG asked Dr. Luibel whether an electric shock could have caused the cardiac arrest and other symptoms found during the autopsy on Cannon. Luibel said it was possible.

The three-man board investigating Cannon's death has already heard testimony about a series of mysterious tamperings and equipment problems that plagued the Sealab III program, the most ambitious project yet in the Navy's man-against-the-sea program.

With the coroner's office said Albert Zavatsky, 18, died when the car overturned and landed on top of him after he and another passenger were ejected. Zavatsky was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Zavatsky, El Monte.

STAY OFF VIET?

'Big J' May Be Nixon's Answer

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

Could the USS New Jersey's return to Long Beach in mid-April be delayed by the current Communist offensive and the U.S. threat of retaliation?

The powerful battleship stands out as one of the U.S. options to answer the continuing North Vietnamese and Viet Cong offensive as well as the South.

Nobody will talk at the Department of Defense with the boss, Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, in Vietnam now studying the situation.

BIG J'S 16-inch guns, firing against the North for the first time since the Nov. 1 bombing halt, could be the answer and at the same time alleviate President Nixon from the difficult decision to resume aerial bombing over North Vietnam.

Rear Adm. David H. Bagley, who just left command of the 7th Fleet Cruiser-Destroyer Force off Vietnam, which includes Big J.

Bagley also said a witness would be called later to show that an electrical disturbance occurred in the water off San Clemente island at the time Cannon died.

GOLDBERG asked Dr. Luibel whether an electric shock could have caused the cardiac arrest and other symptoms found during the autopsy on Cannon. Luibel said it was possible.

The three-man board investigating Cannon's death has already heard testimony about a series of mysterious tamperings and equipment problems that plagued the Sealab III program, the most ambitious project yet in the Navy's man-against-the-sea program.

With the coroner's office said Albert Zavatsky, 18, died when the car overturned and landed on top of him after he and another passenger were ejected. Zavatsky was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Zavatsky, El Monte.

said in Coronado Friday: "I don't know when the New Jersey will return to Long Beach."

The New Jersey's 26-mile range 16s are more effective than aerial bombardment in destroying Communist underground installations in the North as well as the South.

THE ADMIRAL also said as far as he was concerned the Big J will make a second tour of Vietnam, and he predicted a short turnaround when she does return to Long Beach.

Capt. J. Edwin Snyder's 56,000-ton ship can shoot 2,700-pound projectiles with amazing accuracy and destructive power.

"Bad weather, which hampers air strikes, is of no concern to the battleship," Adm. Bagley said.

UCLA 61, USC 55--2 OVERTIMES!

Shackelford Saves Bruins

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

USC played a near-perfect basketball game Friday night.

Sadly for the oft-humiliated Trojans, total perfection is required when UCLA is the opposition.

USC made the "mistake" of allowing the Bruins' Lynn Shackelford to loft a 30-foot shot as the buzzer sounded in the first overtime period and the ball nestled into the basket to give the Bruins a 47-47 tie.

With another disaster averted, the Bruins went on to demolish the Trojans in the second overtime, 61-55, before a standing roaring crowd of 14,574 at the L.A. Sports Arena.

Despite UCLA coach John Wooden's contention that "I've seen a lot more dramatic shots than that one," Shackelford had to be one of college basketball's biggest money bas-sets.

Consider the circum-

UCLA, with a 40-game winning streak on the line, had fallen behind by 47-45 on Steve Jennings' driving layin with seven seconds remaining in the first overtime.

Before the frantic Bruins could get a timeout called, three more seconds had elapsed.

"We didn't have a play set up but we were hoping Shack would get the shot," Wooden revealed.

Sidney Wicks inbounded to John Valley, who in turn fired to Shackelford. The Bruins' senior forward had little time to contemplate any alternative but to shoot.

He was uncontested on the shot, strange in light of the fact that he's considered UCLA's best distance shooter.

Ironically, the senior forward from Burbank had nearly blown the game 27 seconds earlier when his bad pass gave the Trojans possession of the ball and permitted Jennings to make his go-ahead basket.

In the second overtime, Shackelford made five more points, including a field goal four seconds after the start of the second extra session.

But Lew Alcindor's reversal of form in the second overtime was an even greater factor.

Alcindor, college basketball's player of the year, had played lethargically until that point, scoring only seven points as opposed to his season average of 25.1.

But with the pressure on, Lew scored seven more points and was dominating on defense.

To those who had seen UCLA's 40-35 victory over USC in overtime two years ago at the Sports Arena, this was a rerun.

USC shortened the game by holding the ball for extended periods, including going nearly 6½ minutes at the start of the game before attempting its first shot.

But it was good strategy, along with a pressing style of defense that seemed to unglue the Bruins.

UCLA held Bill Russell for 32 seconds later and the Boston player-coach, who had made four key baskets in the fourth quarter, missed his single try. Emmett Bryant grabbed the important rebound but was detected pushing Counts.

Counts had missed 15 of 20 field goal tries at this juncture, but he threaded both free throws and the Lakers' third win in five outings against Boston was secure as their lead was four, 103-99, with 28 seconds to go.

Jerry West, who couldn't find the basket with radar in the second half (3 for 17), made two

Aroused Chamberlain Leads Lakers Past Celts, 105-99

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Wilt Chamberlain, aroused by the bad publicity he has received in recent days, took his wrath out on the Boston Celtics Friday night and grabbed a record 42 rebounds to spark the Lakers to a 105-99 overtime victory.

The controversial Giant talked like it was just another night, but it has been a long time since Lakers fans have seen the big man hustle like he did at both ends of the court.

At least 10 of his rebounds came on the offensive boards.

Elgin Baylor, coming off a horrible night against Baltimore, also played a major role in the win, notching 34 points, and Mel Counts salvaged a frustrating evening by hitting the decisive points, from the foul line, with 28 seconds left.

Chamberlain scored only 12 points, but it didn't matter.

The crowd of 16,887 would much rather see him sky for a rebound or scramble for a loose ball, which he did from the opening buzzer in playing all 53 minutes.

It was, ironically, Chamberlain's two free throws that enabled the rallying Lakers to make it into overtime. The NBA's worst foul shooter, Wilt swished a pair through the nets with 60 seconds remaining that tied the score 94-94.

Neither team shot well, so it wasn't surprising that there were a rash of misses in the closing minute, capped by Keith Erickson's failure at the buzzer from 22 feet.

Chamberlain pulled in 36 rebounds in regulation, tying George Mikan's 17-year-old Laker standard, and he continued his vacuum-cleaner efficiency in the five-minute overtime.

The Lakers fouled Bill Russell 22 times in the second half, and the Boston player-coach, who had made four key baskets in the fourth quarter, missed his single try.

Emmette Bryant grabbed the important rebound but was detected pushing Counts.

QUICKEN TREE FAVORED

16 Go in Big 'Cap Today

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Staff Writer

Sixteen handicap horses with a goal of $100,000 are scheduled to clash in today's 32nd running of the historic Santa Anita Handicap at the classic distance of a mile and one-quarter.

Heading the parade, which could resemble a rodeo when all vie for position at the dangerous first turn, is Rowan & Whitley's Quicken Tree, a California-bred distance star who'll have jockey Bill Harck as skipper.

For those who like to dabble in numerology, Quicken Tree is a mortal lock. Two years ago he finished seventh in this event, last year fourth. If the number game holds up, he should graduate to first place this time around.

Quicken Tree was voted California's 1968 horse-of-the-year and is regarded as the finest true distance horse to be developed in the west in modern times.

The 6-year-old Quicken Tree, who will shoulder high weight of 126 pounds, won't be without competition. Llangollen Farm's Racing Room will carry a 120-pound load but will have the services of Bill Shoemaker, certainly no minus factor in anybody's office pool.

William Haggan Perry's tandem of Gamely and Dignitas (5-1), the Rising Market and Pinckay (3-3), Nodouble and Leonard (3-3), and Gamely, Harris (14-12) will be in the race.

First Mate, Lamberl (13-12), River Volte, a Proud Land, Pinckay (1-1), Praise Jay and Biggs (20-1), with these field horses —Estambul II, Glory Halilujah, Most Host and Kings Favor at 30-1.

Following were Gamely and Dignitas (5-1), the Rising Market and Proud Land entry (7-1), Nodouble (8-1), First Mate (10-1), Rivet (15-1), Praise Jay and Biggs (20-1), with these field horses some people say, it's hard to get 'up' for every

The big man went on to ball just eludes him. To-

Everyone shot poorly so there were more rebounds available. I guess, too, I put it all together."

Consecration Will Cap Festivities at St. Thomas Church

St. Thomas of Canterbury Episcopal Church will happily set the match to its paid-in-full mortgage and will be officially consecrated Tuesday night.

The special service, with Rt. Rev. Francis Eric Bloy, bishop of the Diocese of Los Angeles officiating, will climax a Festival of Arts celebrating the event, beginning today.

Founded in 1947, with the sanctuary completed in 1960, St. Thomas, located at 5606 Arbor Knad, is only the second Episcopal church in Southern California built since World War II to be consecrated.

Rev. David Scovil, rector, says "We'd like to invite everybody to share this happy event with us." The church membership contains 550 families, with approximately 1,000 persons.

The festival runs from 1 to 5 p.m. today, and from 9:30 to 2:30 p.m. Sunday. A highlight tonight at 8 will be a concert by the church's St. Augustine

DEAN TO SPEAK

Prof. Robert C. Campbell, dean and professor of New Testament at California Baptist Theological Seminary, will lecture on "Reconciling the Alienated" Sunday, 7 p.m., in the third of the Lenten series at Covenant Presbyterian Church, Third and Atlantic. Former lecturer on NBC-TV's "Frontiers of Faith," he is editor of Foundations, a Baptist journal of history and theology.

Choir, joined by members of St. Dunstan's Choir from Church of the Transfiguration, Arcadia. Both secular and sacred works will be performed, with solos by instrumentalists and two sopranos. A reception will follow.

Festival exhibits include paintings by James C. Fettmann, head of Lakewood High's art department, ecclesiastical embroidery by Mildred Denton, photographic displays by Bill Audley and wood carving. Dance teacher Peggy Carr and her pupils will present "creative workshops in rhythm" for children this afternoon. Bill Nottingham, a blind parishioner, will demonstrate his chair caning skills.

Tuesday's activities begin with an all-parish dinner at 6:30, at which the actual burning of the $160,000 mortgage will take place. The St. Cecilia Choir will provide music. The consecration will be at 8.

DAY OF SODOM & GOMORRAH BACK, SAYS BIOLA PRESIDENT

The United States is re-living the days of Sodom and Gomorrah, says Dr. Samuel H. Sutherland, president of Biola College, and is "heading straight into the certain judgment of a holy and righteous God."

The head of the conservative Bible college in La Mirada compares American sex morality with that of the Roman Empire, and believes we come off worse.

"Sociologists in our country today are saying 'U.S. sex attitudes are worse than they were in Rome,'" Dr. Sutherland writes in an editorial in the college publication, "The King's Business."

The mature young and middle-aged are fashioning these low moral standards, he charges.

"It is the otherwise respectable younger married people who belong to the notorious key clubs and other organization of a similar nature," he writes. "Who are engaged in swapping wives and husbands for a brief period of time; who are carrying on the social drinking program which is so prevalent in our affluent society today; who are attending and being influenced by the moving pictures designated 'for adults only'; who are serving as a completely degrading example for the teen-age generation..."

What, Sutherland asks, can the land expect from its teen-agers "when such total promiscuity is evidenced on every hand, even among the so-called respectable citizenry of the community and alas, to be found in some church circles also."

Sutherland calls "the freedom allowed in the making and showing of modern moving pictures" one of the most damaging influences in American life.

"Producers know full well that the American public would never pay to see a good, clean, wholesome picture," he asserts, "so sex or lust or murder or brutality of some sort must be glorified in order to make the picture a financial success. The actors and actresses and producers could not care less about the souls of individuals. Their only concern is filling their own pockets..."

He gives short shrift to those who point out that there are those in the moving picture business who do not fit into that category. "... they are in such a minority that their voices are practically unheard," he says.

The Biola president points to statistics of the rise of illegitimate babies, and venereal disease among teen-agers.

"Alas," he says, "we hear only feeble voices raised concerning the moral and social standards of our society in general and of our churches in particular. One minister recently observed that if he preached too strongly on such subjects, his congregation would demand his resignation. This is a deplorable condition. Certainly we are living again 'as it was before the flood,' the days of Sodom and Gomorrah, the days of the lowest ebbs of civilization in all of our history. We are heading straight into the certain judgment of a holy and righteous God."

We welcome comments from pastors, lay leaders and other readers on Dr. Sutherland's charges.)

Should Churches Compete in Business—Tax Free?

By LES RODNEY.

Is it fair — to the taxpayers and to tax-paying businesses — to allow churches to engage in competitive business enterprises tax free?

The question is coming into growing focus. It is estimated that the loss in federal and state taxes from such church-run enterprises is in the neighborhood of $6.5 billion a year, and going up.

This has nothing to do with the historic exemption from property taxes of churches and other facilities used for religious purposes, which is not under attack.

The problem arises from the fact that unlike other tax exempt organizations such as hospitals, orphanages and charitable foundations, churches are permitted by the Internal Revenue Code to engage in money-making businesses not related to their religious purposes, without paying any income tax.

An article in the March Reader's Digest which calls for Congressional reform to end this immunity says:

"Taking advantage of these provisions, numerous churches and religious orders have plunged into the world of business — by lease-back arrangements, by use of 'feeder' corporations (set up to run a business and give all profits to the church), by direct ownership and operation of commercial ventures. They now own business blocks in every major city. They own apartments, restaurants, radio stations, manufacturing and food-processing plants, racetracks, even liquor stores. They produce plastics, textiles, dairy products, tires, trucks, fishing lures. And the profits are all tax-free."

Churches, the article points out, regularly acquire property through gifts and bequests — including security, real estate and thriving businesses.

"Their tax exemption," author O. K. Armstrong says, "makes it tempting for the church to retain and operate the business enterprise."

In addition, churches sometimes invest directly in secular business.

Among random examples cited — The Cathedral of Tomorrow, an independent church of Akron, Ohio, owns a shopping center, an electronics company, a plastics and wire plant, an apartment complex, and a girlie factory! A Trappist monastery in Kentucky sells cheese, fruitcake, Canadian

TELE-VUES

Alarm Clock Pill

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

There's a commercial on TV where the voice suddenly shouts, "Hey, lady, wake up your husband" and then, in an aside, mutters, "nobody pays attention to commercials any more."

There's something in the works that may take care of this little problem. It's a pill — yeah, I know you're up to here with pills, but his pill is really something different. It's a built-in alarm clock pill. Nobody has to wake you up. You take the pill and it does the waking up at some prescribed time.

TELEVISION is not directly involved in this matter. But the advertising agencies, alert to any and all new developments which contribute to instant impact of the mini-movies called commercials are keeping a waking eye on the matter.

With the advancement of medical science, it is only a matter of moment until it will be possible for TV set manufacturers to offer with each purchase a supply of these time release pills. The agencies will want to be in on the ground floor to make sure the alarms are set for awakening potential viewers at commercial intervals.

BUT SCIENTISTS, of course, are not responsible for how their discoveries are used and they are plowing ahead in their research — a subject Walter Cronkite is going to check out at 6 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 2, in his "21st Century" report on "The Sleep-watchers."

The program will report on the investigations demonstrating that there are five stages of sleep: very light, deep sleep in stages two, three and four to the deepest in stage five.

In the fifth stage, says the program notes, "the eyes move rapidly under closed lids. The sleeper is in Rapid Eye Movement, called REM sleep. It is in this stage that the sleeper does the most dreaming. Some Sleepwatchers think that what we learn during the day may be catalogued during REM periods," says Cronkite. "If the theory is true, the more we learn, the more we should have to dream."

THAT'S WHERE the pills come in.

Since there will be so much more to learn in the 21st Century — and in what century isn't it true? — some are suggesting a pill to produce artificial dream time.

Then there's sleepwalking, which experiments show, occurs during Stage 4 sleep. A pill could cut down this period of sleep and correspondingly the amount of time for sleep-walking.

Then, again, Stage 4 sleep is totally lacking in 40 per cent of the schizophrenics studied at Detroit's Lafayette Clinic. So the answer may be a pill to increase this stage of sleep for them.

ABOUT THAT pill for waking people up at specific times — it's not quite ready for the market. Experiments show that it is addictive.

Seems to me I recall some experiments conducted by TeleVues in some columns back in which it was found that TV was the biggest addictive over the counter pill on the market for inducing sleep. They haven't licked that problem yet either.

Marine Gets Navy Cross

2 L.B. Men Honored at Naval Base Ceremonies

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

An Alhambra Marine received America's second highest valor award and two Long Beach men were honored Friday during star-spangled ceremonies at Long Beach Naval Base.

Sgt. Robert L. Hendricks of Alhambra, one of eight Marines honored, was awarded the Navy Cross by Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, assistant commandant of the Marine Corps in Vietnam.

The Marine sergeant threw himself on an enemy grenade that landed close to some sleeping men on a Vietnam field Feb. 19, 1968.

His life was spared when the grenade failed to explode.

The parents of Marine Cpl. Randall T. Planchon II, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Planchon of 4205 Locust Ave., received a posthumous Silver Star Medal from Gen. Walt for their son.

Cpl. Planchon was cited for "saving the lives of three men, moving casualties to the rear and directing suppressive fire after an attack on his unit May 16 near Khe Sanh."

"He assumed the duties of his wounded platoon sergeant and enabled his forces to begin a counter-attack," Lt. Gen. Walt read from the citation.

Planchon was killed July 21 near Quang Tri, six weeks before his tour of duty was to end.

Another Silver Star Medal went to Lt. Barry T. Jones of Mentor, Okla., now assigned to Major H. A. Christy's Long Beach Marine Barracks.

Max Judge, of Torrance, received the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry with Palm, and the Military Merit Medal in behalf of his late son, Pfc. Mark W. Judge, killed in action when he remained behind to provide covering fire during a battle while his unit regrouped. He was previously awarded the Navy Cross for his Sept. 21, 1967 action.

Other citations included the Vietnamese Gallantry Cross and Silver Star Medal to Cpl. Richard A. Bogan, 2131 Locust Ave., a posthumous Vietnamese Military Medal and Gallantry Cross with Palm to the parents of Pfc. Thomas M. Pinatelle of Hawthorne; the Purple Heart posthumously awarded to the mother of Pfc. Anthony Quinn, of Gardena, and the Purple Heart to 2nd Lt. John Marshall, of Whittier.

"I am honored to be here for this occasion, a small measure I know for the sacrifices that have been made," Gen. Walt said.

OFFICER TALKS OF DIVING

'Men Tried it First'

By DICK EMERY
Staff Writer

It was cruel—that's what the Humane Society said—back in the experimental years of deep-sea diving, to try out new diving devices on animals.

"So they quit using animals. They used us!"

Grim-faced Commander Garland Suggs (USN-Ret.), whose achievements as master diver for the Navy won him decorations from two Secretaries of the Navy, sketched the "trial and error" developments Friday during an open-house at a new diving school in Wilmington.

"Back in those days," he said, "we didn't have the technical devices which are standard equipment now."

Inventors all over the country were sending their ideas to the Navy, and the ideas—theories, mechanical devices, proposed systems—had to be tested.

"They were tried out by men!"

"Diving is a dangerous business. Something goes wrong—and someone dies. We now know about nitrogen narcosis—now we have mixed-gas deep-diving, with oxygen and helium."

"MEN—men in pressurized diving suits—had to learn first, by diving to great depths, that nitrogen was a killer."

Successor for departing President Carl W. McIntosh.

After turning thumbs down on Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke's new "Rainbow Selection Committee" procedure, the group nominated 22 teachers from whom a nine-member committee will be elected.

An all-faculty meeting was called for noon Wednesday to vote on the CSCLB committee.

As outlined in a letter to senate Chairman Dr. Leo Goodman-Malamuth from C. Mansel Keene, assistant chancellor, the rainbow committee would consist of: trustees Daniel H. Ridder, co-publisher of The Independent, Press-Telegram, and Alec Cory, San Diego; Dr. Dumke; a local advisory board member; a college president; three campus committee members and Keene.

A major reason for the turn-down seemingly was a fear expressed that non-campus committee members might approve a candidate without seeking agreement by Long Beach representatives.

Ability to dive is valuable unless the diver can perform needed tasks while on the bottom, the commander said.

Houston J. Childers, former master deep sea diver of the Navy, head of the new school, will be chief instructor.

He and other speakers emphasized the need for technical training in deep-sea and commercial diving.

Ability to dive is valuable unless the diver can perform needed tasks while on the bottom, the commander said.

Encouraged by another boisterous demonstration of support from his fraternity brothers, the 23-year-old Lee proudly raised a bottle of mineral oil so it caught the last glimmer of sunlight drifting through the bar's swinging doors.

The crowd cheered.

"THERE'S A WHOLE ART to this," said Lee, an admitted exhibitionist, but still a friendly sort.

"I've found if you sprinkle salt on them, they swim faster."

Why'd he do it?

"Well," explained Lee, "there was this news story the other day about some kid in Texas setting a record with 210 goldfish . . ."

And with his previous experience of swallowing goldfish while running for the campus Diamond Jim contest, he figured he had it in the bowl, so to speak.

The scene was right out of Romberg's "Student Prince," except there wasn't a Kathy anywhere—unless you counted bar owner Dave Wright's mother, Jo—and the only "princely" qualities about Lee were his sideburns and the somewhat regal way he grasped the goldfish by the tail and plopped them into his mouth.

"Well, swallowing goldfish is better than blowing up buildings, isn't it?"

So saying, California State College at Long Beach senior Herb Lee dropped the 260th finny, wiggling, goldfish in 2½ hours into his wide-open mouth—setting a world's record for goldfish eating.

And a wall-to-bar chorus of his Kappa Sigma fraternity brothers packed in The Surf tavern sang out:

"Hooray for Herb, hooray at last, hooray for Herb, he's a horse's . . ."

THEN THE CHAMPION settled down to providing the necessary beer for the fish to swim in.

Teens' Thing Is Useful Task

By STAN LEPPARD
Staff Writer

East Long Beach teenagers dropped in and turned to Friday instead of dropping out and turning on.

The volunteer youth group gathered at the East Long Beach Neighborhood Center to pitch in on the mammoth task of cleaning and refurbishing the center's present headquarters at 2334 E. Anaheim St.

artists to me," he told her.

The location, formerly the old Cabart Theater, was occupied about two months ago by the center, part of the federally-funded Community Action Program with Family Service of Long Beach as the delegate agency.

Efforts by the teenage volunteers Friday were not a one-day project. The group has been part of a mass community effort to transform the building into liveable, workable center offices.

"THESE youngsters are doing a great job," said Ernest Faulkner Jr., center director. "Anyone who says young people have no constructive spirit any more should stop by and see them."

The group, ranging in age from 14 to 21 years, were painters, window washers, carpenters' helpers, and general cleanup crews. And they appeared to enjoy it.

"It's a neighborhood thing," explained Mando Nieto, 17, of 3518 E. Eighth St., a Wilson High School student who was in charge of rallying the boys to aid in the program. "We like that."

WITH THE Nietos, it's also a family thing. Man-do's sister, Amelia, 16, is in charge of recruiting the girls. Their mother, Olivia, is secretary at the center. Their father, Ysidro, is one of the adult volunteers working on the huge spruce-up job.

Five-year-old Virginia Stricklin, a Wilson High student, of 784 Redondo Ave., was busy painting new molding around a door between offices. She stepped back to admire her work.

"I'm not a good painter," she said critically, "but on the other hand, I'm not bad, either."

Mike Wilber, 21-year-old Cal State student of 1053½ Euclid Ave., also wielding a paintbrush, agreed with the latter analysis.

"Both of us look like artists to me," he told her.

DEBATE REVOLVES ABOUT ROOF SIGNS

Although there are some other revolving roof-top signs in the area, the Planning Commission couldn't bring itself to approve an application of Radio Shack for such a sign at 6414 E. Spring St.

After considerable discussion, the commission put the matter over until next Thursday, when Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. is to bring in a joint report with the city attorney's office on the extent of the commission's control over signs.

The existing ordinance gives them authority over "uniformity of design and treatment," and the meaning of this has been subject to debate.

Mayer had recommended against the 11-by-8-foot revolving sign because it was "not in keeping with the condition of signing" elsewhere in the shopping area, and because of residential property immediately to the rear of the Mormon Church, he said.

Paul Mortensen, institute director, said the church will operate classes during the day for students at City College, and will be open to members and nonmembers of the Mormon Church, he said.

Classes will be conducted in the existing duplex, and the existing garage apartment will be occupied by a caretaker. The corner lot will be paved and landscaped for parking 26 cars.

TEEN-AGE SAFETY MEET

Education Key, Students Told

More than 50 high school student representatives participated in the 13th Annual Teen-Age Traffic Safety Conference Friday.

The day-long program included student group discussions, conferences, and the presentation of student resolutions.

MUNICIPAL COURT Judge Thomas C. Murphy, keynote speaker, told the conference that safety education and enforcement must be increased or the figure of traffic fatalities will double over the next five years.

The student resolutions were presented to the City of Long Beach by Greg McGinnis, chairman of the Long Beach Student Safety council.

McGinnis said the council contends that youth, "with its vitality and bright outlook, can propose effective recommendations to their elders in hopes of perfecting our current laws and regulations and establish a better, safer world."

Resolutions introduced dealt with methods of effective driver education, law enforcement sessions in school classes, stronger equipment safety regulations, pedestrian safety, and others.

OTHER SPEAKERS included Police Chief William J. Mooney, Mary Williams, Wilson High School; Leeland Hendrix, Lakewood High School, and Linda Snellen, vice chairman of the Student Safety Council.

The program was sponsored by the Pilot Club of Long Beach, the Long Beach Safety Council, and the Long Beach Motor Car Dealers Association.

Jail Sales

Increase to $18,946

Inmates of Long Beach jail purchased 36,285 packages of cigarettes and about 59,000 candy bars during the 1967-68 fiscal year, according to the annual audit of the prisoner welfare fund.

Total cash receipts from all sources, including vending machine commissions at the honor farm and receipts from haircuts, amounted to $18,946, the audit revealed.

THIS WAS a $2,431 increase over the prior year, but the gain was primarily because of an increase in the price of cigarettes, and was offset to a large part by a similar increase in cost of the cigarettes, the audit pointed out.

Disbursements for merchandise, welfare expense and prisoners' services totaled $20,989. Most of the cost, was for purchase of the merchandise for sale to the inmates.

Welfare expense totaled $528.50, plus purchase of a television set for the honor farm for $187.95. Expenditures for prisoners' services are wages paid to trustees for cooking, painting, laundry and clothing room helpers.

Trustees are paid either 50 cents or $1 a day, depending on the type of service and number of hours. Such compensation totaled $3,537.50 during the 1967-68 fiscal year, the audit said.

THE AUDIT recommended that the barber's fund, which has been kept as a separate account, be included in the prisoners' welfare fund. The fund totaled $541.97 as of the end of the fiscal year.

The barber is a trusty who gives other inmates free haircuts, and cuts police officers' hair for 50 cents each. He is permitted to keep 40 cents of each haircut price, and the other 10 cents goes into the barber's fund for supplies and other expenses.

Prisoners' welfare funds are authorized by the State Penal Code. They yield a small profit which is used for prisoner services and welfare.

It will be operated by the Church of Latter-day Saints, but the application was filed by property owners, Eugene R. Kirkpatrick; R. R. Kirkpatrick; D. M. Hodges Jr., and Evelyn E. Belisle.

Paul Mortensen, institute director, said the church will operate classes during the day for students at City College, and will be open to members and nonmembers of the Mormon Church, he said.

Classes will be conducted in the existing duplex, and the existing garage apartment will be occupied by a caretaker. The corner lot will be paved and landscaped for parking 26 cars.

A native of Wilmington, he graduated from Yale and served in the Navy during World War I. He opened Matson Navigation Co.'s first Los Angeles office, and was freight traffic manager for the company. He also served as secretary of the Pacific American Steamship Association, president of Los Angeles Steamship Association and vice president of the Waterfront Employers Association.

Surviving are his wife, Alice; two daughters, Mrs. Nancy Call, Mrs. Katherine Sisk, and six grandchildren. Services, conducted by Armstrong Mortuary, will be at 11 a.m. in the Banning home, 432 N. McCadden Place.

JERRY ZANKICH, 23, was held to answer Friday on charges of possessing dangerous drugs and driving under the influence of dangerous drugs.

San Pedro Municipal Judge Michael Yelovich continued $12,500 bail and ordered Zankich to appear March 29 in Long Beach Superior Court to answer the charges.

The San Pedro man was arrested last week after police ended a midnight chase with his capture in the Pt. Fermin area.
